My Qualifications: I received my PhD in Psychology from Southern California University in 2009 and my MSW from UBC in 1990. I am a registered social worker and a registered clinical Counsellor. I have over 24 years of experience providing treatment for children and adults. My private practice includes working with adults and children experiencing divorce and parenting issues, including high conflict divorce, co-parenting, trauma, sexual and physical abuse, grief and loss. My practice includes child specialist consultation working with co-parenting coaching teams, reunification teams and collaborative divorce teams.

You have the right to ask questions about any procedures used during therapy; if you wish I will explain my usual approach and methods. Your parent coach can also provide information. You have the right not to receive therapeutic assistance from me; if you wish I will provide you with the names of other qualified professionals. If you have concerns with me you have the right to ask questions or contact the BC College of Social Workers.

Office Policy

I am a child specialist and only work with children if parents are divorced or separated. Parent's are required to be willing to engage a parenting coach. It's important to note that if during the process the coach or coaches are no longer involved, I will assist in referring the child(ren) to other services.
